Get killers of activists, CPP orders NPA rebels

THE COMMUNIST PARTY OF THE Philippines yesterday issued an order to its armed wing, the New People's Army, to go after military and police forces it believed were behind the killings of activists.

On its 30th founding anniversary, the CPP said in a statement posted on its website that the NPA should attain revolutionary justice for all the victims of "state terrorism."

The statement did not identify targets by name, but described the Communist Party's activities in charge of internal security as the "killer" of the state against activists.

The CPP said the Communist Party's special operations teams and death squads were behind the most of extrajudicial killings.

"The NPA should force teams with the determination and skills to choose the time and place for striking the criminals and bringing them to justice or for giving battle to those who are well-armed and cannot be peacefully resolved," the CPP said.

It said "the best time to arrest or give battle to the monsters in the Atropo region is when they are already in a state of total political decay."

ORMOC CITY—A FIRECRACKER LIT BY A CHILD ignited a pile of fireworks on display at a department store in Ormoc City in Leyte, turning Christmas Day into an inferno.

At least 24 people—shoppers, vendors and store employ-—were killed and 22 others injured in the fire that burned down the Luning store.

Police said people used the entrance managed to escape but others fled deeper and ran into a bathroom, where 23 bodies were later found. Many of them were believed to have suffocated.

A dramatic footage on ABC television showed an unidentified woman looking trapped on the roof of the burning building.

Then, leaving the heat and the smoke, she clambered onto the roof of a nearby building to save herself.

Survivors and bystanders said they could hear people screaming "Fire, fire" as flames roared up the one-story building.

Two of those killed were infants only a few months old.

Police said the main cause of the back of the store was panicked, knocking the escape route, according to The Star and other news agencies.

Firemen later broke the lock, enabling some of the trapped people to get out.

Survivors said the store was filled with shoppers when the fire broke out at around 4:40 p.m.

MANUEL ABRA—THE PHILIPPINE National Police has deployed its Special Action Force to secure the Abra capital today for the burial of Rep. Ido Abra.

Calatagan received the peace and order situation in the northern province and its fragments for the burial of Bernardo, 62, who was gunned down on Dec. 16 outside St. Gerald Church in Quezon City, along with his police bodyguard, Adela Branga, 49.

The 100-strong special PNP force will be reinforced by the Cotabato police mobile group, Calatagan said. Checkpoints will also be set up in the capital.

"We want the PNP to be very visible," he said.

Calatagan met with members of Bernand's family yesterday and gave his assurance that the PNP would give them security escorts even after the May elections next year.

Thousands of Abra residents are expected to attend Bernand's burial at 7 a.m. today and the lawmaker's eldest daughter Charlene Bernand. "We are satisfied with General Calatagan's assurance of safety for us and the people," she said.

In Manila, Justice Secretary Earl Conde said he would lead a delegation to Abra to meet with Bernand's family and investigate the murder by former Army Maj. Ruffo Panday.

Panday, 61, an Abra native, was arrested on Dec. 14 in his Manila City residence. He was found he had acted as lookout during the assassination, which he said was carried out by four other men.

They included former La Paz, Abra, Vice Mayor Freddie Supo, who Panday said had told him that Bernand was the brains behind remains of the quake that killed more than 200,000 in southern Java, meteorologists said. (See related story on page A1.)

Deputy Director General of the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology (PIVOS) said the earthquake did not produce any tsunami, based on information from the Pacific Tsunami Warning Center (PTWC).

"The bulletin issued by the PIVOS merely warning center in Taiwan showed that there was no tsunami generated," Ranaivos said the inquiry bureau.

Precaution

"The precaution we are taking is alerting residents against a tsunami based on historical data and news might affect much in the area, including Bataan," Ranaivos said.

But of the precaution was to advise residents in coastal areas in Northern Luzon to move to higher ground or further away from the coast, he said.

The danger of a tsunami caused by a powerful earthquake off Taiwan has passed, Japan's Meteorological Agency said last Tuesday.

"The reported waves did not materialize," Ishikawa said of the agency.

PIVOS Director General Ranaivos said his agency had alerted the Office of Civil Defense about a tsunami but only as a precaution.

"The earthquake was felt at intensity 5 in Bataan," Ranaivos said on radio DZBB.

"We have already advised the Office of Civil Defense... but this is only as a precautionary measure," Ranaivos added.

"We don't expect a tsunami in the Philippines," OCHA Chief Glen Solano said.

"If the earthquake occurred two hours ago, the tsunami should have hit by now," he said the inquiry bureau has been alerted after the earthquake occurred.

"We are monitoring the situation. The tsunami alert might not be precaution," he said.

Rep. Imelda Almeda of Bataan said the provincial chapter of the National Disaster Coordinating Council had been alerted "in case the setting of tsunami.

Magnitude 7.1

The US Geological Survey said the quake registered magnitude 7.1, while Taiwan's Central Weather Bureau reported it as 6.7.

This quake in Taiwan's southern city of Pingtung collapsed, triggering six people, 3,000 cubic meters (cubic meters) of debris. The quake also triggered fire and gas leaks, the agency said.

No deaths were immediately reported.

Japan's Meteorological Agency said the quake triggered a one-meter-high tsunami that it said was headed toward the Philippines.

"There is a possibility of a destructive local tsunami," the Japanese bureau said, saying waves were expected to hit Bataan in the Philippines.

"However, at some coast, particularly close to the epicenter, higher tsunami may arrive," it said. "Nucleus" should be aware of this possibility."

No threat

The United States Pacific west coast said there was no threat of a destructive Pacific-wide tsunami, based on historical earthquake and tsunami data, for that it would not have the above as low as the threat level is so far from the Philippines.

The quake hit on the second anniversary of a massive earthquake off Indonesia that triggered a powerful tsunami in the Indian Ocean which killed 230,000 people in a dozen countries.

Tuesday's quake was felt throughout Bataan. It caused buildings and knocked down of the station in the capital, Taipei, and southern part of the island.

People from were in the southern coast of Bataan and Pingtung, possibly hindering reports of damage by residents, the US State Dept. reported. Several high-rise hotels were severely damaged, it said.

The impact was estimated at about 21 km northwest of Pingtung in the southern tip of Taiwan. It lasted for about 10 seconds of Japan. NGP reports from American Red Cross, Christian Relief Agency, Michael J. Linn, Manila, Philippines, and AFP.

HEALTH TIPS FOR A SAFE NEW YEAR

Some health tips for a safe New Year

1. Do not use fireworks during the holidays. Make sure you are using alternative noise makers such as drums, trumpets, "bells", handbells, metal pots or pans, etc.
2. Do not drink or use alcohol in excess that leads to injury.
3. Do not allow children to play with "blowups". It is dangerous and can kill.
4. Do not use PVC fire guns and cannons. It is harmful to man and the environment.
5. Do not fire your gun.

Why we should avoid using fireworks?

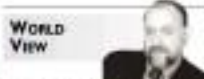

1. Lighting fireworks can cause serious if not fatal injuries.
2. Fireworks can lead to loss of limbs, lives and properties.
3. Explosive fireworks emit gases and dust full of harmful chemicals that worsen the pollution in the air and can cause throat and chest congestion and asthma attacks.
4. Setting off fireworks and other polluting noisemakers like PVC fire guns and cannons leaves behind residual waste such as paper scraps, cellophane, plastic wrappers and PVC pipes which add up to the piles of holiday trash.
5. Fireworks produce excessive noise, which can lead to anxiety, stress, sleep disorders and hearing disabilities and may trigger high blood pressure and heart attack.

Palace to watch gov's 'Cha-cha meet'

MALACANANG WILL ONLY WATCH AND WILL NOT interfere in the emergency meeting called by provincial governors on Jan. 12 to decide whether they would push for Charter change and in what mode.

Presidential adviser on political affairs Genolito Claudio said the meeting of local government officials would help President Macapagal-Arroyo, who has initiated a new push for Charter change following the defeat of the people's initiative and referendum proposals, get the pulse of the masses on Charter change.

"The call of some governors for an emergency meeting is not that it is a common position on Charter change is a common policy initiated in the House of Representatives of the Philippines (Harep)," said Claudio in a text message.

Claudio stressed that the Palace was not interested in controlling such a meeting nor does it intend to interfere.

The Palace had previously taken a direct hand in previous Charter change undertakings such as funding the information campaign for the people's initiative early this year and leading a caucus of congressmen in finalizing their all-out attempt to convene a constituent assembly under the 1987 Constitution.

Protest

Whether the local government officials decide in the meeting is expected to have a bearing on the Palace's role in the future. "The emergency Harep is a more significant and effective initiative organization and forum to gauge the sentiments and will of local congressmen and other constituents and representatives they represent on local issues not the least of which is a constitutional issue," Claudio said.

Books that have been "disappeared" from the shelves of the Philippine Revolution Museum announced that members of the League of Provinces of the Philippines have agreed to sit down on Jan. 12 and discuss the government's stance on whether to push for Charter change and what mode should be chosen. Up to the proxy group of all organizations of local government officials such as senators, house members, mayors, vice mayors, city governments, and governors.

Over the said two weeks, the government is expected to consult extensively with these organizations from housing leaders, civil groups and church officials on their stand on Charter change.

Commitment

The President declared last week that Charter change remained a "national commitment" and that the way open to any of the three main people's initiatives, constituent assembly, and constitutional convention, would be to achieve it.

While Malacananag has decided to take a hands-off policy on the government meeting, the President's proxy group and its former chair, Interior and Local Government Secretary Francisco Duque, have reportedly started out a campaign among local congressmen in line with the Commission on Elections' second position for a people's initiative in a single and direct form, setting for a constituent congress with a presidential leadership to conduct the original process made by Harep and signed by the Supreme Court last October.

While the first position was drafted by the High Court, proponents of the study argue that the SC has upheld Republic Act 6711, the Initiative and Referendum Act, as an existing law.

Deadly carnival ride

1 dead, 6 hurt as cart device fails

By Eder C. Sison Jr.

A FIFTY-ONE-YEAR-OLD man today after his cart fell off a carnival ride, killing a 10-year-old girl and injuring five other children in Marikina City on Christmas Day.

The last cart of the octopus ride in a small carnival at the Marikina Shopping Center in Marikina City de la Peña crashed to the ground after the metal rotator holding them broke. Initial reports said the ride was in good condition.

Mayor Marikina quickly suspended the operation of all six carnivals operating in the city for the holiday season in response to the investigation and reported fatalities. The operators of the ride are now detained at the city police station while the reported victim is still at home, police said.

The incident was classified as a homicide case. The police said that the ride was in good condition and that the ride was in good condition.

Ethiopia fighter jets strafe Mogadishu airports

MOGADISHU, SOMALIA—An Ethiopian fighter jet strafed Mogadishu's airport on Monday in a chilling show of force that took the growing conflict in the Horn of Africa to Somalia's capital for the first time.

Around the country's border, the Islamic leaders announced that they were fighting to bring the region to the Islamic faith, but the government's military response was limited.

In Mogadishu, a dense area of Ethiopian fighter jets remained the first time they had not before. The jets, which were shot down after the Islamic leaders pulled out, a truck heading east, possibly towards the city, was hit in the air and fell to the ground.

"It was a mistake to see that first," said Abdul Kadir, a senior official in the Islamic government.

The fighting between Somalia's Islamic government and the country's powerful Islamic movement, based in the border region, has been ongoing since the start of the war.

On Monday, Ethiopia reportedly sent the Islamic government's "Islamic Shura, Somalia, Islamic Shura" to several border areas and forcing it to send troops deep into Somalia's territory. Ethiopian officials said they were not involved in the conflict.

Japan data dent yen; Taiwan stocks at 6-yr high

Trading quiet in most Asian markets due to Christmas holidays

OSAKA—BLOOMBERG Japan's government bonds rose on Tuesday as inflation and consumption data fueled debate about whether the Bank of Japan will raise interest rates next month.

Trading was quiet in most Asian markets, but Taiwan slipped a six-year high on hopes that Japan's trade with China could soften, and a reported index rebounded the same in a series of years high.

Oil prices rose more than a dollar a barrel, as an unusually warm spell in the United States looked set to end and after the United Nations agreed to a new agreement.

Japan's new consumer price index rose in line with expectations and personal consumption fell less than forecast in November, but the data failed to shift debate about whether Japanese rates will be lifted from 0.25 percent in January.

"The household spending data was better than expected, but if you look at the headline there is a 'red' sign for a Bank of Japan rate hike in January. I don't think that's the case," a Japanese bank trader said. "I think the market is in the market that a rate rise in January is still a bit off."

Investors' expectations of a rate hike to be raised back last week after BOJ Governor Yukio Edano said Japanese consumption and consumer prices had softened.

The Nikkei closed around 12,000, up only slightly after a week of trading a record low of 11,900 on an economic policy outlook.

MOEX's Osaka index of shares elsewhere in Asia rose 0.1 percent to 12,450, after a week of trading a record low of 11,900 on an economic policy outlook.

Housing, health, tech stocks touted as Wall St. sleeper hits

NEW YORK—BLOOMBERG Housing, health and technology stocks are being touted as Wall Street sleeper hits by some analysts.

Analysts are pointing to a number of factors that could drive these sectors higher, including a strong housing market and a growing health care industry.

Technology stocks are also being touted as a potential sleeper hit, with analysts pointing to the growing importance of technology in the economy.

Overall, analysts are optimistic about the prospects for these sectors in the coming year, and are recommending investors consider them as part of their portfolio.

Investors are being encouraged to look for opportunities in these sectors, particularly in the areas of housing, health and technology.

ON: PSIPTE UP FOR 'BALE EATERS'

On October 10, 2012, the Philippine Business for Social Progress (PBSP) announced a partnership with the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) to launch the "Bale Eat" campaign. The campaign is a social marketing initiative that aims to reduce the consumption of processed food and increase the consumption of fresh fruits and vegetables. The campaign is a response to the growing concern over the health of Filipinos, particularly the rising incidence of obesity and non-communicable diseases (NCDs). The campaign is a joint effort between the PBSP and the UNDP, with the PBSP providing the leadership and the UNDP providing the technical support. The campaign is a multi-media effort that includes a variety of activities, including the distribution of "Bale Eat" kits, the launch of "Bale Eat" kiosks, and the launch of "Bale Eat" campaigns in schools, workplaces, and communities. 2006 LIFE STYLE

The year that was in fashion

By Bianca Contreras
J&J Correspondent

THE PAST YEAR WAS DEFINITELY MORE experimental, fashion-wise. There were fewer shirts and jeans and even dresses, skirts and skirts. Finally, people were learning to dress up.

One of the most notable trends of 2006 was the return of the '70s. Leggings in all colors and colors came back with a vengeance. Flats, with little, round, white heels and low-cut, long skirts were most noticeable. Oh, in reality, the comeback included all shoulder tops, miniskirts and chunky jewelry. However, bubble skirts, another '70s staple, were less visible this year.

Casual became the new formal as there were few tuxedos to the formal and beach. Parties were thrown down, paired with dressy tops, heels, and lots of accessories to night-out and formal occasions. Many jeans also became mainstream, as more people abandoned their overly old jeans for something more hip.

Mid-2006 showed some trends not different, as color stripes, bold and smartly tailored pants made their way to party occasions. But pants that proved to be more

FUN SNAPS FROM 2006

THE COUNTRY'S Ever popular Ray of Tala TV returned in February when the Christmas 2005 Gophers were still on tour under the spirit of joy in the PDI lobby. During a lengthy visit, Ray Alameda said on "I'm not afraid to go home" (in Boracay, Sanic, where he was born and raised). When all of this is done, I'll head a talk show with the fish and the various and have a good laugh." The Gophers join Ray in this photo by (MyGlobe) here from his 1. PDI donated the various houses shortly after to different schools, some of them in the province.

And to think this would not have been possible without the heroic efforts of Miami's (Globe) 2006-2007 efforts to be able to do so.

Whoa, that girl Jennifer Hudson

NEW YORK—THE TALE OF THE film "Dreamgirls" has it could have been called "Killer to Beats." Former "Survivor" star, now "American Idol" winner, Jennifer Hudson makes her debut with this film, playing the lead role of a former soul singer who becomes a superstar. Hudson's performance is a tour de force, capturing the essence of the soul of the 1960s, and the story of the Dreamgirls.

Review

There have been a lot of reviews of the film "Dreamgirls" but none have captured the essence of the film as well as this one. Hudson's performance is a tour de force, capturing the essence of the soul of the 1960s, and the story of the Dreamgirls.

Selflessly decay

James Franco is a multi-talented actor, singer, and writer. In his latest film, "The Straight Story," he plays a man who is on a journey to see his brother who is in a nursing home. The film is a beautiful story of brotherly love and the power of nature.

JENNIFER HUDSON

Hudson became the most talented member of the cast in her role as the lead singer. Her performance is a tour de force, capturing the essence of the soul of the 1960s, and the story of the Dreamgirls.

While Hudson's role is a tour de force, her performance is a tour de force, capturing the essence of the soul of the 1960s, and the story of the Dreamgirls.

Shirley, however, plays a role in the film that is a tour de force, capturing the essence of the soul of the 1960s, and the story of the Dreamgirls.

But this is Hudson's movie, and she plays a role in the film that is a tour de force, capturing the essence of the soul of the 1960s, and the story of the Dreamgirls.
